To produce a printed work worthy of its subject, we have developed a four-step research and production process.

First, we conduct a series of in-person interviews with the individual, in consultation with family members and friends as appropriate. Full confidentiality is assured.

Next, all materials are transcribed, edited for clarity and continuity, and fleshed out with supplementary materials, including photographs.

Then, all text and related graphic elements are integrated and printed to laser copy for review.

Finally, using camera-ready flats and Syquest disk, the books are custom printed and bound in leather or fiber, according to preference.

Modern Memoirs documents an individual's unique life experiences. These could include:

- Adventures
- Romances
- Customs
- Stories from childhood
- Careers
- Achievements
- Set-backs
- Turning points
- Medical history
- Genealogy charts
- Letters or manuscripts
- Ethical wills and crucial instructions

MEMOIRS by Doris P. Lebow, a full-length memoir handbound in leather and paper, artfully combines 18 hours of as-told-to personal reflections with 29 photos, 40 letters of personal correspondence, 62 favorite recipes, three genealogy charts, two maps and a family medical history.

In addition to the commissioned as-told-to memoir, Modern Memoirs has developed a unique format that transforms awkward family photo and record albums into readily accessible print volumes. Using a mix of photos and text, the Children's Book Series specializes in preserving a child's earliest experiences, experiments and areas of expertise.

Hendrix's Book recounts a little girl's first three-and-a-half years, in 32 pages of text, 28 photos, two drawings and a footprint.

Modern Memoirs also provides editing and/or publishing services for personal manuscripts of all lengths and topics.
